Program overview

Sthapatya Veda, also known as Vedic or Natural Law Based architecture is the most ancient and complete system of architecture and city planning in accord with Natural Law, which takes into account the influences of the planets and of the North and South Poles and the equator. The first act is to establish the knower, which is something that takes place in your own consciousness. Establishing a house to protect the knower comes after that. The term Sthapatya Veda refers to the theoretical aspect, while the term Vastu refers to the applied aspect of this precious knowledge. Veda means knowledge, and Sthapan means to establish. Therefore Sthapatya Veda is the Science of Establishing. Sthapatya Veda embraces the concept of the holistic origin of the universe. It expounds the principles involved in the areas of Vastushastra (architecture and planning), Shilpashastra (sculpture and iconography), Chitrakala (painting in all branches). It envelops within it, the knowledge of Jyotis, Ayur-Veda and Gandharva Veda etc. and tenets of Samudhrika Shastra and other branches of Vedic knowledge.
